My dear and much-respected Friend: I address this wants the hope that many young, as well as old men, my to you is the hope that many young, as well as old men, may be brothed, as may only so in his been, from the use of your Dr. WEBBER'S INVIGORATING SANGUIFIER. For four months he had been gradually wasting, until, from a robust, bealthy young man, he became a mere form of gkin and bone; his appetite was quite gone, his face chair-rousity this, he slept keys intile and was continually nervous restless, and he seemed to was to shun all company, five lines, or excitement; in fact, his neutral faculties seemed to be valuing, his healthout and shungs were painful to witness. I will make this communic in short by staining that he had taken three bottless of your Cordial in the statement. I consider your Cordial in a seed a boon first work of the seed of the smacking.

A PPLETONS RAILWAY GUIDE
For the month of JANUARY.

One Volume, 12mc., 26t pages—Price 25 cents.

New Reading Matier in Every Number.

Extract from a letter to The Saturday Evening Gasette, Boston:
"Within the past six months, business or pleasure has carried me into one half of the States of the Union, and over several thousand miles of railroad, and I have never arrived at a depot ten minutes late, or lost a connection—thanks to my packet companion, "Appletons' Railway Guide"—a work corrected and published moutably, which is a model for accuracy, and may be reflect on most implicitly. A study of its contents has beguined many miles of their tediousness, while the information it imparts reflects the greatest credit upon the publishers."
